

THE EDITO

Par le Général de division (2ème section) Charles Beaudoin

Charles BEAUDOUIN a servi 38 ans au sein de l'Armée de Terre. Ancien directeur de la section technique de l'armée de terre, puis sous-chef d'état-major « plans et programmes » de l'armée de Terre, il est depuis octobre 2020 Directeur général de COGES Events.

Cybersecurity... The fifth dimension

Cybersecurity, an obscure realm to the uninitiated masses, is nonetheless taking on crucial significance and becoming a tangible reality, gaining notoriety in recent years and establishing itself as nothing less than a new area alongside the traditional physical areas of land, sea, air and space. This fifth dimension is that of "immaterial fields".

DIGITAL TRANSITION

Riding the Peloton of Online Safety

By Julie Inman Grant

The practice of online safety as a discipline in the technology sector has, until fairly recently, felt rather like an afterthought. In the early days of social media, speed to market was often prioritised in the race for people's attention, driven by a 'move fast and break things' ethos.

DIGITAL IDENTITY & KYC

How digital KYC is transforming business

By Marc Auxenfans

Formerly used to combat money laundering, "know your customer" (KYC) is expanding its scope and recurrence to become cyber-resilient. Previously a characteristic of the financial sector alone, its process and regulatory requirements are gradually being extended to other activities: real estate, crypto-assets, IT...

DIGITAL TRANSITION

The shadow of social credit looms over Europe

By Richard Dalleau

It rules the lives of 1.4 billion Chinese people. It shapes the thoughts of 330 million Americans. In different forms, social credit is gaining ground at the heart of a European continent still attached to the protection of privacy and individual freedoms. For how long?

DIGITAL SOVEREIGNTY

How to make Belgium one of the least cyber-vulnerable countries in Europe

By Miguel De Bruycker

Cyberthreats keep evolving, that we can all agree on! The digital transition of society, the emergence of new technologies, the geopolitical situation, are all factors that have an impact on cyberthreats, the consequences of which are increasingly significant for our society.
